How America Pays for Graduate School

A snapshot of grad student attitudes and actions from the national study by Sallie Mae" and Ipsos

Driven by career goals, grad students are willing to invest time and money in their future. They pay more than 3/4 of grad school expenses themselves.

2/3 say a grad degree is the new minimum standard for professionals

9 in 10 believe they will make more money post-degree

Where the money for grad school comes from

Student borrowing

64% of students file a FAFSA

External contributions

 17% of students receive money from family and friends

Student earnings Includes income and savings

 3% is paid for by tuition reimbursement or other employer benefits

Grants, fellowships, scholarships, and tuition waivers

 40% of students take advantage of free money

They're motivated to earn their degree

63% begin a grad program within 1 year of their undergrad degree

More attend full time than part time

43% pert time

More students choose a school based on quality or convenience than cost

47% of grad students have at least one federal loan

Of those who have a federal loan, half expect Public Service Loan Forgiveness
